MEET THE HUMMI

McKENZIE could eat a horse . . . finally!

By MICHAEL CHIRON
World Staff Writer

BOSTON — Doctors have dubbed McKenzie Noulen the "Human Hummingbird" because she can't sleep and must eat her body weight every day just to stay alive!

McKenzie's metabolism is so supercharged that she needs to consume 82 pounds of food daily — yet she burns off the calories so fast, she never gains weight.

"Miss Noulen has to eat constantly to keep her body functioning," says her physician, Dr. Brian Dunaway. "If she stops eating for even one minute, she'll pass out and soon die.

"She can't sleep, but merely catnaps while she continues to eat. It's a hellish way to live, and we are powerless to help her."

McKenzie's metabolism was always higher than normal — as a teen, friends would envy the way she could eat like a horse and still look skinny. But in college, it became clear that she had a serious medical problem.

"I found that I always needed a stack of candy bars on hand to get me through a lecture," recalls McKenzie, now 24.

More men than ever are getting PMS — through menopause!

VIENNA, Austria — PMS, menopause, breast cancer — these are just a few of the ailments normally associated with women that are now plaguing men in growing numbers.

"The trend coincides with men and women trading roles in society. It's connected to the gradual emasculation of the male to the point where there's little difference between the sexes anymore," Dr. Ernst Klimmer.

Just a few years ago, said Dr. Edward Lewis of Harvard University, "the idea of male menopause would have been laughed out of town. But things have changed."

Here are a few of the ailments formerly considered

■ ANOREXIA — One man in 10 now suffers from this psychological disorder, characterized by self-imposed starvation. Said Dr. Klimmer: "The rise in anorexia in men is directly traceable to the alarming trend among modern females to diet — to eat — is true. And true still is this axiom: 'You are what you think.'"

■ BREAST CANCER — Thousands of men are now being diagnosed each year with breast cancer in the U.S., compared to just hundreds as recently as the proven to constrain among middle-aged men it's been given a name, "menopause," and is characterized by the same hot flashes, fatigue, memory lapses and mood swings suffered by women going through "the change of life."

■ OSTEOPOROSIS — It's a disease that causes bones to become fragile and break easily. Studies show that men

...witnessed. The young woman sought medical attention — and doctors were stumped to find that her metabolic rate was the highest ever recorded.

"Her resting heart rate is 202 beats per minute — more than six times faster than the norm," said Dr Desmoncy, an endocrinologist. "Just sitting still, she burns off tens of thousands of calories a minute — her body uses up energy that fast."

A typical day's feasting for McKenzie includes: 36 eggs, 14 pieces of toast, six pounds of mashed potatoes, nine steaks, 11 milk shakes, four slabs of barbecued ribs, two roast chickens, three pizzas, two apple pies, eight gallons of ice cream, 40 Milky Way bars and 119 Hershey Kisses. Yet the 5-foot-4 woman remains a svelte 80 pounds.

"People see me wolfing down food and they think I'm a pig, but I can't help it," says McKenzie, mumbling her words through a mouthful of chicken.

Experts believe that a rare glandular condition is responsible for McKenzie's high metabolism, but so far scores of specialists haven't figured out how to fix the problem.

Like McKenzie, hummingbirds' hearts beat superfast — an incredible 1,260 beats a minute. Also like her, they're always starving.

"Some people think it must be wonderful to eat all the time and never gain weight," says McKenzie. "They're wrong."

JESUS VIRUS!

Computer 'bug' wipes out Internet pornography & replaces it with scripture!

JESUS, shown here in classic painting, and the Lord work in mysterious ways, says the Bible, and the Jesus Virus certainly qualifies!

MIAMI, Fla. — Fed up with the proliferation of filthy porno Web sites? A militant Christian computer hacker is fighting back with a unique computer virus that replaces pornographic material with holy Scripture!

The special program, known as the Jesus Virus, slips silently into the hard drives of pornographic Web sites via e-mail and immediately eliminates all sexually explicit text and photos. Once the damage is done, it cannot be reversed.

"Hard-core Internet pornography is destroying this nation," states the angry hacker who goes by the pseudonym Holy Roller. "It has to be stopped, and the best way to do that is to hit the porn mongers where they live — at their Web sites. By my estimate, I've put almost 100 pornographic Web sites out of business, and that's just the beginning. I won't rest until Internet porn is completely eliminated."

The Jesus Virus substitutes dirty words and pictures with biblical text. One of Holy Roller's favorite passages is the Ten Commandments, which he sees as a guide for clean living.

"The Ten Commandments address the issue of Internet porn very clearly," Holy Roller explains. "For example, they say 'Thou shalt have no other gods before me.' That's important, because to me, many porn mongers hold their degrading pictures above all else. Also pertinent is the Commandment which states, 'Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife,' which is exactly what men do when they look at sexually explicit photos.

HOT STUFF! The new Jesus Virus is "burning up" the Internet — literally!

"Those who are addicted to Internet porn need to learn that the word of God — not pornography — is the road to salvation."

Not everyone agrees that Holy Roller is doing the Lord's work. Some Internet porn providers who have felt his wrath are offering a cash

"This guy is entitled to his beliefs, but he has no right to destroy my Web site," says one California-based porn provider, who admits to making nearly $100,000 a year off his X-rated site. "I'm just a businessman offering the public what it wants. If Holy

Doc goes under the covers to shed light on the secrets of slumber

What the way you sleep says about your love life!

By DENNIS D'ANTONIO / Weekly World News

DENVER — The way you and your partner sleep together reveals a lot about your love life, says a top expert.

"The positions couples adopt during their slumber speak volumes about their level of intimacy and the style and quality of their lovemaking," says psychologist Dr Karl Bowne. He bases his conclusions on an ongoing study he's conducted through the years centering on the personalities, sex lives — and sleeping positions of over 700 couples.

PSYCHOLOGIST Dr. Karl Bowne

To find out how you rate, look at the five photos and pick the one that most closely depicts the way you and your mate sleep, then read Dr. Bowne' comments.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE — Couples who sleep back to back without touching each other, strangely enough, tend to be the wildest and most passionate in their lovemaking. "They exert so much energy and produce so much heat they don't normally cuddle," says Dr. Bowne, a family and marriage counselor for 30 years.

BOTTOMS UP — In this position, the man normally sleeps face down with his arms spread — "as if he's embracing the whole world. The woman adopts a tuck position, preserving the warmth she feels in the center of her body.

"They fall asleep feeling like they've got the world by the tail," says Dr. Bowne.

SPOONS — "Lovers who sleep in this position, I've found, are the kind of people who are extremely tactile — they love to touch so much that they fall asleep in maximum body contact."

HER LEG OVER HIS — This could have two meanings, according to Dr Bowne. "Either she's unfulfilled and left wanting more, or she's totally satisfied and is simply trying to prolong the afterglow."

HIS LEG OVER HERS — "Men aren't generally left unsatisfied in their lovemaking, so there's little question what this position means for the man — he's feeling very affectionate and adopts a posture that preserves his afterglow," says Dr Bowne.

HEY GUYS, ARE YOU WHIPPED?

YES, DEAR! On TV's Everybody Loves Raymond, actress Patricia Heaton seems to have the upper hand over co-star Ray Romano.

LOS ANGELES — Hey guys, does your sweetie have you wrapped around her little finger? You may be "whipped" and not even realize it!

According to psychologists who study relationships, millions of today's assertive young women use their feminine wiles to exert total control over their men — yet they often exercise power in such a subtle manner that the guys have no idea who's really in charge.

Here, say the experts, is how to tell if you're whipped:

1. You change the way you dress to suit your lady and wind up looking like Barbie's convert, the Ken doll.

2. You change your hairstyle because she tells you to.

3. You ditch friends she declares to be "bad news" or a "bad influence."

4. She demands all of your time, denying you the leisure hours you need to watch sports or hang out with chums.

5. She decides when, where, how — and how often — you'll make love.

6. The last three movies you saw were "chick flicks."

7. You eat what she tells you to eat, usually "rabbit food."

8. You stop ogling pretty girls.

9. Your woman — not you — "owns" the TV remote.

Stunned doctors perform emergency C-section!

GIRL GIVES BIRTH TO 32-LB. BABY

ORLEANS, France — A teenage mom set a new world record when she gave birth to the heaviest baby ever — a supertot weighing a scale-crunching 32 pounds!

Collette Bujon, 15, gave birth to the huge baby boy named Jean-Baptiste on April 19 — Easter Sunday.

"Jean-Baptiste was born at a normal weight for a 3-year-old child," says Dr. Claude Hersant, the obstetrician who delivered the giant infant by cesarean section in what hospital spokesmen termed "an emergency procedure."

Both the mother and child are doing fine, according to the hospital.

Miss Bujon, who plans to wed the baby's father Michel Courtet this summer, admits that carrying the toddler-sized fetus to term was an ordeal.

"The doctors put me on a bed rest after the first trimester and warned me that it was a high-risk pregnancy. They said I should be mentally prepared for the possibility of a miscarriage," she said as she cuddled her bouncing baby boy.

"But God has given me a big, strong, healthy son — I call him my Easter miracle. He gobbles formula by the quart — about a gallon a day. He rattles the windows when he burps."

Doctors were concerned about Miss Bujon's pregnancy from the start because she suffers from diabetes and must take insulin shots daily.

"Women with diabetes are always considered high risk," Dr. Hersant explained. "Insulin is like a growth hormone for fetuses. It can make them grow too fast in the womb and they can become too large for the uterus to support."

While babies delivered by diabetic women tend to be larger than normal, Jean-Baptiste is the biggest on record, Dr. Hersant confirmed.

"Normally I can easily hold a newborn child in the palm of one hand — when I delivered Jean-Baptiste I was stunned by how hard it was to lift him," said the physician. "The ultrasound didn't really prepare us for how big he turned out."

But Miss Bujon, a student, says she had plenty of warning that her son would be a real handful.

"When I was six months along, my belly was so big I just couldn't walk at all," she recalls. "People who saw me thought I was having twins or triplets.

"He won't fit in ordinary baby clothes. We put him in pajamas meant for a 3-year-old."

Doctors say that Jean Baptiste's accelerated growth should slow now and he'll probably be in the normal size range as an adult.

British hero didn't get his goats

LONDON — Harold Gordon Smith rushed to the rescue when he saw a gang of thugs roughing up a young woman, and chased off the attackers.

But he turned down the reward offered by her grateful parents back home in Kenya. Smith apparently figured that busy London was no place to care for a herd of goats.

'Smarter' toys don't guarantee smarter kids!

BOSTON — You're throwing your money away when you buy your kids expensive high-tech "educational" toys like computer chess, science-based video games or see-through replicas of the human body. Children will improve their minds just as much by playing with good old standards like modeling clay, teddy bears and hobby horses!

"Barbie and G.I. Joe have as much of a chance of stimulating creativity and being educational as the so-called educational toys now sold to child development," Professor [illegible] of Wheelock College in Boston says, "So many toys that claim to be educational aren't anything of the sort."

Lewis and others recommend "open-ended" toys — that is, toys like blocks, dolls and [illegible] that provide children with the opportunity to use their imaginations.

"Open-ended toys are well-suited to children who spend their time developing spontaneously. Children who are [illegible] more than those who are bored most often."

Dottie Fallowfoxy, who directs the pre-primary program at Lowell School and The Washington Post that the kids who play with open-ended toys are more creative and imaginative than those who don't.

"Open-ended toys are more challenging and stimulating than toys that do all the work for the child," she says. "Children who play with open-ended toys are more likely to develop their own ideas and solve problems on their own."

Fallowfoxy says that the most important thing about toys is that they be fun. "Children learn best when they're having fun," she says. "Toys that are boring or frustrating don't help children learn."

GENETIC SUPERMAN IS NO MR. PERFECT!

FAMED Dr. Cappy Backman artificially inseminated Dr. Alton Blake with semen from a "genius sperm bank" in 1982. Doron is the result.

Doron Blake was supposed to be a world-class athlete — but he's a geek!

"DESIGNER BABY" Doron Blake, 18, is a disappointment to his parents.

PORTLAND, Oreg. — Scientists' bid to create a genetic "superman" in a lab has backfired big-time! Instead of growing up to be a handsome champion athlete and genius scientist, the "designer baby" has turned out to be a skinny, geeky-looking guy who hates competitive sports, finds science boring and struggles with a stammer.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

Doron Blake, now an 18-year-old student at Reed College, feels the eccentric millionaire who founded the so-called "genius sperm bank" where he was conceived in hopes of creating the perfect man might be somewhat disappointed at the results.

"He'd feel I was unfulfilled potential," Doron told Weekly World News.

California millionaire Dr. Robert Graham created a firestorm of controversy back in 1980 when he founded the Repository for Germinal Choice, vowing to "improve" the human race. His idea was to collect sperm from the world's most intelligent men, including Nobel Prize winners and others of good genetic stock and to use artificial insemination to impregnate female volunteers — spawning a new breed of supermen.

Critics were horrified by the scheme, charging that it was reminiscent of the eugenics program started by Nazi madman Adolf Hitler, who dreamed of breeding a master race of physically and mentally superior supermen who would rule over "inferior" humans.

Graham's critics were also concerned that the sperm bank would be used by women who wanted to have children by famous men without their knowledge or consent.

Graham, who died in 1997, insisted that his sperm bank was not a eugenics program, but merely a way to help infertile couples have children.

Doron's parents, Dr. Alton Blake and Cappy Backman, were among the first couples to use the sperm bank. Backman was artificially inseminated with sperm from a "genius" donor in 1982.

Doron's parents had hoped he would grow up to be a world-class athlete and a scientist who would find a cure for cancer and "help everybody." But now that seems unlikely.

Although Doron's genes have indeed endowed him with a sky-high I.Q. of 180 and a knack for mathematics, the gold-engineered youth doesn't really enjoy math or science.

"It's not what I like to study," said Doron, whose anonymous sperm donor was known simply as Batch 28. And while he stands 6 feet tall, geeky Doron is no jock either.

"I don't like the mano-a-mano ethics of team sports," said Doron, who has a wispy goatee.

The college student says he gets good grades, but not straight A's by any means.

"Dr. Graham was trying to breed geniuses and I have 'genius genes,' but I don't think I'm what you'd call a genius," he admitted.

Doron feels he didn't come out as expected because environment also plays a big role. The music man, who prefers music and enjoys playing the guitar, says his mother Dr. Alton Blake never pressured him to be a genius. Some of the 218 other "supermen" conceived through the lab didn't have it so easy.

"Some of the members were very

WILL THE REAL STAND UP?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Cleopatra, the Queen of the Nile, is renowned as the most beautiful and mysterious woman who ever lived. And her legend lives on today in the unlikeliest of hosts — a New Jersey baby and an Iowa woman who BOTH are believed by some to be the alluring Queen of Egypt.

RED BANK, N.J. — Cleopatra, the fabled Queen of Egypt and lover of Antony and Caesar, is alive and living in a double-wide trailer in a mobile home park.

A team of some of the most brilliant geneticists and biologists in the Middle East used DNA extracted from blood, hair and dandruff to clone a human egg and transplant it inside the womb of a volunteer mom to create an exact duplicate of the tragic beauty.

The experiments and historic breakthrough were disclosed in Paris Life, a Paris-based journal circulated among royal governors and other world scientific community members.

"With the success of this undertaking, humanity has opened the door to a brave new world destined to be ruled by the best and the brightest of past ages," Dr. Nahla Bakir, a prominent and scientific director of the astounding project, was quoted as saying.

The project was reportedly funded by a shadowy group of Egyptian royalists dedicated to restoring the pharaohs to their former rule.

And the chance discovery of an ancient carpet that the strong-willed female pharaoh was strapped in, then smuggled through enemy lines to be delivered to Caesar, made the restoration project possible.

"The royal queen was apparently bruised and scraped, and lost some hair and blood in the process," Dr. Bakir explained.

"So when the ancient carpeting was discovered and identified in an antiquities shop in Alexandria's Casbah — we were able to extract a sufficient amount of the queen's tissue to carry out our scientific endeavor."

New Jersey housewife says: MY BABY IS THE QUEEN OF EGYPT

According to the brilliant geneticist, the team worked in a secret laboratory in Alexandria for months before they successfully created four test tube embryos containing the lost queen's DNA.

Only one of the women who volunteered as hosts for the developing fetus managed to carry the baby to term.

Dr. Bakir described the host mother as a devout young woman who is devoted to the religion of ancient Egypt, and was convinced that her sacrifice would lead to restoration of the old gods and glory.

She was studying in the United States when she was impregnated, and dropped out of college to marry a handsome master plumber from New Jersey who was wonderfully older.

The scientist released a single photograph of mother and daughter shown at left to Egyptian newspapers. But the expert steadfastly has refused to divulge their names.

Dr. Bakir said she and her colleagues believe the gods selected the woman to become Cleopatra's mother because the child would be safer in the United States.

The scientist said the dark-eyed girl, now nearly a year old, will be prepared "for her rightful role as goddess queen — pharaoh of Egypt. Plans are already underway to quietly spirit her to the Middle East, where she will be prepared

Iowa farm wife brags, 'I'M THE REAL QUEEN OF THE NILE!'

DES MOINES, Iowa — The glamorous Egyptian god-queen Cleopatra has been reincarnated as the wife of a Boone county hog farmer and the shocking discovery of the grandmother's past life has devastated her family.

"That horrible experience has turned Audrey into a monster and she thinks she's too good to do farm work or associate with the rest of the family," her heartbroken daughter Celia Mishler revealed.

"Ever since she learned about her past life all she wants to do is get on that ugly mule and go around with her artist crossed, or stuff tranklin-cense and hang on some stupid brass gong."

Mrs. Mishler told a reporter for Post Lakes Journal, a newsletter for hypnotists and psychologists who practice hypnotic regression to cure mental and physical ailments, that the trouble started when her mother Janet Tarrop, 42, sought help for emotional problems.

"She began flying into violent rages if we didn't immediately cater to her every whim and we finally took her to a hypnotist who found out what was behind her uncharacteristic behavior," the daughter said.

"The hypnotherapist led her through several past lives before he realized she was

A Not much. The former tennis ace, who claims his encounter with model ANGELA DUMAKOVA lasted a mere five seconds, was divorced from his wife Barbara shortly after his fling became public. Bobbie and two other divorced men now live in the home he once shared with his wife and two sons. There he says, the three recluses quite often spend long nights drinking wine, smoking cigarillos and talking about women. "In our conversations, it's always the women whose fault it is," admits the former Wimbledon champ.

Q I heard on the radio that sexy BILLY BOB THORNTON is making a country music album. Is he pulling our leg or what?

— Dana C., Huntsville, Ala.

A It's no joke. The Oscar-winning actor, who originally headed to California to pursue a career in rock 'n' roll, has just finished an album of self-penned country tunes — with wife ANGELINA JOLIE joining him on some of the cuts. And the Sling Blade star says he may yet make music his primary career. "I'm not doing this as a hobby," Thornton says. "I wrote the songs right out of my gut."

Q The Godfather will always be my favorite movie and it's hard to forget how incredible MARLON BRANDO was. But I haven't seen his name popping up too much lately — has he officially retired?

— Lesanne K., Mount Vernon, N.Y.

A Not even close. At 77, Brando is still spreading his wings — as well as his girth, of course. Word from Italy is that this acting legend will make a giant departure from Godfather Don Corleone and sign on to play Pope John XXIII, the one worshipers call the "Good Pope."

New movie's blood 'n' guts battle scenes bring back . . .

THE GHOSTS OF PEARL HARBOR

REALISTIC battle scenes in the upcoming new movie Pearl Harbor will give viewers chills — even if they lived through the horrifying events as heroes on that day of infamy nearly 60 years ago.

The soon-to-be-blockbuster flick Pearl Harbor, starring BEN AFFLECK, contains blood-and-guts battle scenes that make the ultra-gory Saving Private Ryan look like Gidget Goes Hawaiian. And anything less would have been a slap in the face of the 2,341 U.S. sailors, Marines and soldiers killed in the sneak attack — not to mention those who lived through what was truly the most horrifying day in American history.

Before I saw the movie, I was absolutely sure they were going to mainly portray the thing to death and the survivors of the [illegible] But some of those scenes were so real I almost had to close my eyes because I started to live the thing all over again.

We were sitting ducks out there, and I saw my buddies blown to bits — absolutely dismembered, torn apart. And remember, they managed to make the entire movie as chilling.

He's right. We're not crying in our beer. We know the folks who made Pearl Harbor created those stunning battle scenes with an eye on the bottom line, not on KOBE, Japan — Police investigators have finally nabbed one of the region's most notorious jewel thieves — an 8-year-old capuchin monkey named Sesame!

According to detectives, Sesame was responsible for more than 300 jewel heists over a five-year period. The value of the property swiped by the sweet simian is believed to total nearly $1.2 million.

Sesame was turned into the cops by his owner, Hideaki Yoshino, 37, police say. Yoshino apparently taught his pet to climb up the side of high-rise apartment buildings in wealthy neighborhoods, enter through an open window, and steal jewelry and other small valuables.

YOU'VE GOTTA BE AN IDIOT TO DO YOGA

says Ed

ED SAYS: "Sure, this young model is gorgeous and looks to be in great shape like that stick-thin supermodel Christy Turlington on the cover of Time (inset). But I'll bet neither one of 'em could last two minutes in the ring with a WWF heavyweight like Bubba Ray Dudley."

I'm madder than a swami with a knot in his turban over all the yapping everybody's doing about yoga these days.

Time magazine even put skinny-minnie model Christy Turlington doing yoga on its cover and wrote a big story about people twisting themselves up like a pretzel.

Some sissy fitness experts have the big idea that if you can't wiggle your body to look like a Slinky and stick your foot in your ear, you're not in shape. I say that's a bunch of dogwash.

Take a look at all the pencil-necks who are so excited about yoga. Not one of them weighs more than 90 pounds sopping wet or has the muscles God gave a 12-year-old.

And if these people are in such great shape, what good is it doing them?

Put any one of these yoga freaks in the ring with the hottest, most out-of-shape wrestler in the World Wrestling Federation and what do you think would happen? Even Bubba Ray Dudley would have no problem squashing one of these twisted-up string beans and he's fat as a pig.

And bending yourself up like a pig doll won't do you any good if you're trying to gain three yards up the middle in an NFL game. In fact, a couple of 280-lb linebackers would be more than happy to twist your body in a few new ways that you never thought of.

I say we don't need stupid, new-fangled stuff like yoga when we have good old-fashioned sit-ups and push-ups that we all did back when I was in the Marines.

Yoga is just another way to rip people off. Instead of having old-fashioned exercise classes and calisthenics, now they charge people hundreds of dollars and have fancy schmancy yoga classes with stinky candles burning and weirdo music playing.

It's just like a few years ago when the so-called experts decided that ice cream was bad for everybody and started pushing some expensive, gross-out stuff they call yogurt.

Yogurt and yo

BOY BLOWS OUT HIS EYES — WITH A SNEEZE

BEFORE THE ACCIDENT. Trevor Beale was a happy, healthy 11-year-old.

By VICKIE YORK/Kentucky World News

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand — Like so many other little boys, Trevor Beale was warned by his mother never to hold his nostrils shut while sneezing. But he did it anyway — and both his eyes popped out!

Now, as a result of the tragic brush mishap, the 11-year-old is totally blind and bravely trying to adjust to a life without sight.

"Unfortunately, we were unable to reattach the eyes," ophthalmologist Dr. Edwin Harlan told reporters.

Medical experts say that the increased intracranial pressure caused by blocked sneezing has been known to lead to detached retinas in other young patients. But this is the first case they know of where the entire eyes were ejected from their sockets.

"We suspect that Trevor had a significant congenital deformity that weakened the muscles attaching the eyes to the orbital cavity," said Dr. Harlan. "Such a condition would make what happened almost inevitable."

"Another type of trauma, such as getting hit in the head by a baseball, might eventually have led to the sudden loss of his eyes."

Trevor's mom Della Beale says she had often warned boys Trevor and his sister Debby, 4, not to try to hold

"He had a stuffy nose that day," recalls 34-year-old Mrs. Beale, whose husband was at work at the time. "I told him to use a tissue and just let everything come out."

Later that day, while Trevor and his sister were playing in the bedroom, she heard her son scream in pain — followed by Debby's cry of alarm. Mrs. Beale ran into the room.

"When I saw Trevor standing there with the eyeballs dangling from the sockets and blood all over his face, I nearly passed out," she said. "But he was very calm. He kept saying, 'Mom, I can't see.'"

Trevor is now getting special training from a service that helps blind children adjust.

"He's handling it well," his mother said. "He's learning to walk with a cane and we're planning to get him a guide dog."

Experts say that while Trevor's congenital condition increased the risk of damage to his eyes, no one should ever try to block a sneeze by pinching their nose and closing their mouth.

CAT KILLS ABUSIVE OWNER!

TAJIC SIMIN — More than 1,000 animal lovers are clamoring to adopt a cat that killed its abusive owner.

Reinaldo Pena, 48, was found dead at home, his throat slashed and his arms covered with cuts and scratches. Police initially believed Pena had been the victim of a home invasion — until they found caked blood on the paws of his Himalayan cat.

"Neighbors told us Pena was extremely cruel and abusive to his pet," said Police Detective Raoul Ortega. "Our conclusion is the cat killed Pena in self-defense."

After news of Pena's death was reported, animal control officials received more than 1,000 letters and phone calls from cat lovers eager to

FED 'BBQ KID' & 'LITTLE BOY STEW' TO HIS NEIGHBORS, SAY COPS!

By CLIFF LINEDECKER
Weekly World News

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — The revolting notations and menus for "barbecued kid," "sex a la carte," "my little kid dessert," "little boy stew" and "little boy potpies" looked like they were taken straight from a scary children's fairy tale.

But the macabre writings had nothing to do with an old witch who lived in a gingerbread house or a fierce giant who lurked at the top of a bushy beanstalk and ate tight-fingered little boys.

The grotesque notes were the work of Nathaniel Bar-Jonah, 43, a depraved sexual predator whom alarmed authorities believe kidnapped, raped and butchered a little boy — then fed the flesh to neighbors and friends.

Bar-Jonah told the unsuspecting dinners that the strange tasting meat on the pies, stews and spaghetti was lamb. But he stalked, killed and butchered himself, according to investigators.

Police were investigating the sexual torture of a teenage boy and the earlier disappearance of Zachary Ramsay, 6, who vanished while walking to school on Feb. 6, 1996, when they unearthed the bodies of an older child from beneath the dirt floor of Bar-Jonah's garage.

"We believe he's dead," Cascade County prosecutor Brant Light told a reporter about the Ramsay boy. "We'd like to find a body."

Suspects of cannibalism rode used in notes composed by Bar-Jonah that referred to the menus and other papers that described how sex acts

Incredibly, Nathaniel Bar-Jonah, 43, had an appalling record of arrests in Massachusetts for kidnapping and sexually abusing young boys and a caseworker and a psychiatrist reported he admitted to fantasies of cannibalism.

Bar-Jonah, whose former name was David Brown, was released in 1992 from the Massachusetts Treatment Center for the Sexually Dangerous.

After he got into trouble a month later for assaulting another boy, he was released on probation with orders to move in his mother's home in

Dear Dotti

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

I'd love my babies if they acted like adults!

Jim in Minnesota

Dear Dotti: My three children, ages 7, 5 and 3, are driving me crazy! All they do is run around yelling and screaming — and then whine, pout and cry when things don't go their way.

They're always touching things they're not supposed to touch, leaving toys lying around instead of in their boxes and saying embarrassing things in front of company.

I can't tell you how many times I've tried to sit them down and talk to them about this behavior, very patiently — but it's no good. Every word I tell them about responsibility and maturity just goes in one ear and out the other. The 3-year old is the worst. If she wants something and you don't give it to her, she'll just throw herself down on her belly and start wailing like a banshee.

Dotti, I'm at my wit's end — sometimes I just can't stand the sight of the little rabble-rousers. Perhaps I would feel differently about my children if they showed the same kind of respect and fairness toward my wife and myself as we show to them, but they don't. Why are they behaving this way? — Jim in Minnesota

Dear Jim: They behave like that because they're children. Children are not little adults. They're not capable of behaving like adults, and they're not capable of understanding why they should behave like adults.

Children are little animals. They're born with a few instincts and a lot of energy, and they're programmed to learn how to behave by watching their parents and other adults. They're not programmed to behave by listening to their parents and other adults.

'Guard Gator' protects drug idiot's stash!

MIAMI — Drug enforcement officers who raided a house here discovered a huge stash of marijuana — and a handsome 5-foot long "guard gator."

"This alligator has excellent body weight, very alert, just a perfect alligator," Todd Hardwick, of Pesky Critters, told reporters after he was called in to carry the animal away.

But the gator wasn't a very good watchdog. He not only lost his job and home, but police carted off 25 marijuana plants and another 10 pounds of harvested weed from the refrigerator.

KILLER WHALE SWALLOWS MARINE PARK TOURIST!

TOKYO — In a horrifying spectacle witnessed by her two teenage grandchildren, a 71-year-old German tourist was swallowed whole and killed by Yoshi the trained killer whale, a 16-foot male conditioned to come that spectators were encouraged to pet him.

By NICK ELL, Weekly World News

"It happened unbelievably fast. Grandma was standing at the pool, leaning over the railing, holding a mackerel in her outstretched arm — and all of a sudden Yoshi rose half-out of the water, grabbed her around the head and shoulders — and swallowed her in the blink of an eye," grandson Karl Otto, 16, told local reporters.

Said his sister, Elsa, 14, "My family is sick to death over this. It's so sad. This was grandmother's first trip outside of Germany. Her dream was to see Mt. Fuji. She never got the chance."

Police Capt. Otapi Ishawa, who was in charge of the investigation at the marine park where the tragedy occurred, said, "the woman's body was quickly recovered and returned to the family."

He explained that Yoshi "regurgitated" the victim several minutes after swallowing her.

"There were no teeth marks. Incredibly she was still wearing her dentures, gold, wire-frame spectacles. The autopsy showed the shock of heart failure caused by shock and suffocation."

"Yoshi is now the center of a controversy over whether or should be killed. He is being kept in quarantine until the courts decide what to do."

Who'll win the World Series?

Dear Serena: This is an unusual request but I'm going to ask you anyway. Who's going to play in the World Series this season? And it would help a lot if you could tell me who'll win.

If you can tell me, I can place a bet now and win a lot of money. I promise you I won't use any of the cash for myself. I want to start a shelter for the homeless and build a youth center for underprivileged kids.

Please help me out, Serena. There are a lot of people depending on you and me. — Neil in Kansas City

Dear Neil: I know baseball is going to win the World Series but I'm not going to "split the beans" as my father used to say. Because I don't want to ruin the season for baseball fans, I will answer your plea with a fuzzy hint. The first will be last — and the last will be first.

Dear Serena: It seems like every time my family gets ahead financially we fall right back where we started. My parents provide for my three brothers and me as well as they can and they work very hard, but we have nothing to show for it but a bundle of love and a desire to read every cue beside. I'm trying to get a part-time job while I'm in school to help out. Do you see things getting any better for us? — Dawn in Louisville

NEIL — Kansas City

Dear Dawn: The love your family shows makes you richer than you could ever imagine — remember that as all times. Your financial situation is looking up! I see you getting that part-time job within the next few weeks. I also see your family winning a six-figure lottery package if they buy just one ticket next week. Your lucky numbers? The ages of each person in your family.

Dear Serena: My boyfriend says he has a scheme that can make us rich. It sounds kind of crazy but I'm no financial expert, so I don't know what to think. Should I risk all my savings into this? — Lisa in Dallas

Dear Lisa: Your boyfriend's idea will work like a charm — as part of a pre-enrolled investment.

Dear Serena: Where did I get my tapeworm? My doctor has given me medication to get rid of it but I never want to go through this kind of embarrassment again. — Revolted in New Brunswick

Dear Revolted: You picked up the tapeworm from the fruit you smuggled back from Mexico after that trip last month. I hate to say, 'Justice was served,' but I guess in this case I have to!

Dear Serena: Whenever I go to nightclubs or bars, I always end up dancing on a table, usually with my clothes off. Sometimes, like last weekend, I black out and don't remember what I did. My question to you is this: Just what DID I do last weekend? Anything I need to worry about? — Amy in Fort Lauderdale

AMY in Fort Lauderdale

Dear Amy: I wish I could say otherwise, child, but you did something with several members of a motorcycle gang — something that you'll regret for the rest of your life. Fortunately, you didn't get pregnant. But you should see a doctor right away — early treatment of the disease you contracted will help you live a longer and more normal life.

Dear Serena: Why does my brother, Freddy, keep saying "Kick me" whenever he sees me? Everytime he does, he laughs and laughs and all his stupid friends laugh, too. He won't tell me what he means, Serena. Can you help? — Confused in Omaha

Dear Confused: Several weeks ago Freddy taped a "Kick Me" note to your back and you walked around in full view of his friends for a whole day before it dropped off. Now that you know why they're laughing at you, feel free to ask Freddy about that nice Ms. English teacher whom your parents so read and rave — the one about him disrupting class with a water gun!

THIS WEEK'S SIX LUCKIEST LOTTO NUMBERS

Weekly World News has purchased exclusive rights to the world's most powerful computer — and we use it to pick the six luckiest lottery numbers every week!

The Swiss-built computer, called Bright Green, has the ability to calculate which lottery numbers are most likely to come up each week, based on previous performance and established tendencies. The numbers are good for the week Weekly World News is on the newsstand.

The computer scans all numbers selected in lotteries across America over the past year to provide a statistical base for predicting future results. More value is given to the most recently selected numbers.

Using all available data, the computer picks the luckiest numbers:

TERROR AT 40,

FLYING IS EXPENSIVE — and

By ADRIENNE LEWIS / Weekly World News

MIAMI — If you think road rage is bad — wait until you get a load of the unfriendly skies that are waiting for you during the peak summer flying season.

Major airlines across the country are gearing up to deal with an explosion of turbulence in the skies and on the ground by fed up passengers who will make the roughhousing in professional wrestling look like a game of school-yard tag by comparison.

The situation has become so critical with travelers attacking employees — even trying to storm the cockpit — that the security advisor for America's largest pilots' union has recommended that airlines begin cataloging passenger job skills so the crew will know who's ready, willing and able to help out during in-flight emergencies.

"If you look at all these situations, I think that in all cases the passengers have been the ones that saved the day," Stephen Luckey was quoted in USA Today as saying. "But it's been a reaction, almost a mob reaction."

Luckey, chairman of the National Security Committee for the Air Line Pilots Association, suggested that doctors, police, bomb experts and others with specialized skills could help in emergencies, especially if the crew knew ahead of time who they were.

Services of a skilled police officer would have come in handy when a drunken passenger became enraged during a London to Florida flight and attacked an attendant, while screaming, "I'm going to kill you."

The drunk, who was angered because his alcohol had been cut off, was subdued and flight attendants pulled a pair of plastic handcuffs over his wrists. But the cuffs were put on improperly and he burned through the plastic with a cigarette lighter, then struggled free.

These are a few other air-rage incidents that have crew members — and passengers — rubbing their worry beads.

● A Missouri construction contractor was accused of storming the cockpit on a flight from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, to San Francisco shouting "I'm going to kill you" and lunging for the controls before he was wrestled to the floor by other passengers.

● Terrified passengers on a Southwest Airlines flight banged on Jonathan Burton, when he went berserk and kicked a hole in the cockpit door while yelling that he could fly the plane. Burton, 19, was suffocated during the frenzied battle thousands of feet over Utah.

● Investment banker Richard Gerard Finneran, 50, president of Trump America Development Inc., was charged with assaulting a flight attendant — and defecating on a service cart during a fracas on a United Airlines flight from Buenos Aires to New York. The executive was sentenced to two years probation and ordered not to drink on airplanes.

● Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee was banned from flying on Continental Airlines after reportedly lashing into a flight attendant with a torrent of obscenities. The ban on the Texas Democrat was revoked after she wrote a letter of apology.

● John C. Davis, 31, was acquitted on assault charges filed after he reportedly broke the neck of a Continental Airlines agent

Air-rage epidemic will explode this summer — and you may be the next victim!

Fur flies over tennis cutie Anna's flying dog!

Tennis babe Anna Kournikova, 18, and her mother tangled with the crew of an American Airlines flight from Dallas to Florida, according to employees who said police shot had refused to put her miniature Doberman pinscher in it's carrying case — as required by FAA rules.

Police met the plane when it landed at Miami, but the dog was already back in its case and the tennis star and her mother denied they had refused to cooperate with the crew. A police officer said the mother and daughter accused the flight crew of being obnoxious and rude.

during a confrontation at Newark International Airport over a flight delay. Davis claimed the agent grabbed him first and he was acting in self-defense.

● Identical twin sisters Cynthia and Crystal Mikula, 23, of Buckley, Mich., were on their way to China for a wedding ceremony, but according to the accounts of outraged members of a flight crew, they behaved more like they were training for a boxing match.

Federal prosecutors charged the Mikula sisters with interfering with the performance of a flight crew after a wild fracas broke out and they allegedly drank too much, began swearing, used the aircraft restroom to smoke – and smashed the nose of a stewardess.

The cops were charged after United Airlines Flight 857 from San Francisco to Shanghai was diverted to Anchorage.

The Association of Flight Attendants has reacted to the crisis by calling for stiffer prosecution of trouble-makers, better employee training, preflight safety briefings and more responsible alcohol service.

EVEN IF YOU SURVIVE THE FLIGHT, YOU'LL PROBABLY GET SICK

ATLANTA — Flying on a commercial airliner puts you at up to 10 times greater risk of coming down with a cold, flu or other "catchy" disease than any other means of travel, studies show.

Here's how to protect yourself:

● Don't use the blankets or pillows. They're not normally replaced between flights and may have been used by someone else. Also, airline laundering practices are questionable.

● Use an over-the-counter nasal spray to keep your nasal passages moist. Aircraft cabin air dries them out and makes it far more likely you'll catch a bug. Moist nasal passages trap germs. "Airplane air is the most unhealthy air you're exposed to," says Rob Moss, author of Stress Survival.

● Move. If the person next to you has a cold or is coughing or otherwise appears ill, change seats if you're able.

● Wear a mask. It seems a bit extreme, but many experts say it's the best way to avoid catching a cold or other communicable disease.

The minute cleared long ago from the most famous duel in American history, but you probably carry a picture of one of the participants in your wallet or purse.

On July 11, 1804, Aaron Burr — Vice President of the United States — gunned down revolutionary war hero Alexander Hamilton, who's pictured on that $10 bill in your pocket.

These are just a few of the fun facts Weekly World News researchers have dug up for your enjoyment. And for more entertaining trivia, read on.

● Basque is said to be the world's most difficult language to learn because it's not related to any other tongue. It's spoken in northwestern Spain and southwestern France.

Mandarin is the most spoken language, which is another way of saying there are more Chinese than anyone else on the planet, followed by folks who speak English and Spanish.

The well-known wheel-style opener was invented in 1938.

● The tallest mammal is the giraffe, and the tallest giraffe known was a 9 year old bull named "George" at England's Chester Zoo. He stood 20 feet tall. Giraffes, their incredibly long necks notwithstanding, have no vocal cords.

● The strongest animals for their size are beetles. In one test a rhinoceros beetle supported 850 times its own weight on its back.

That's the same as a 150-pound man carrying 127,500 pounds!

● The average Hollywood movie costs a minimum $25 million to make and about $10 million to market, according to the Motion Picture Association. The costliest movie to date: James Cameron's Titanic at $200 million.

● The top five all-time money-making films: Titanic, Jurassic Park, Independence Day, Star Wars, The Lion King. Notice they're all family films.

● Traffic lights were used before electric traffic lights were installed in 1930 in — you guessed it — Detroit, the Motor City.

● If you've ever wondered how something so heavy as a big jetliner can fly, consider this: A 747 capable of carrying more than 500 people weighs upwards of 870,000 pounds at takeoff and can fly over 7000 miles.

The Wright Brothers would never believe it.

● A quarter of all food produced in Western countries winds up in garbage cans, according to a study by the Economic Research Service. And even on that thought, 1.2 billion people are undernourished — while about the same number of folks are over weight.

● Did you know that for every people fish than bowl or play ball? Fishing in fact is the world's biggest participant sport. And that's no whopper!

AMERICA'S MESSIEST DORM ROOM

CHICAGO — "I like to call my apartment 'Matt's Dark Pit of Filth!'" declares Matt Robinson of Indiana University who won first place and $10,000 in the Apartments.com Messiest College Apartment Contest.

He hasn't planned to the ugly truth, but of campus life in his entry essay. Robinson wrote: "I don't think I've done dishes since I moved in and have switched to paper plates and plastic utensils which never seem to make it to the trash can. I also eat a lot of takeout, the remains of which sit in the cardboard containers or paper bags that litter my floor."

Said Ronny Gottschalk, director of brand strategy and communications at Apartments.com: "Our goal in the contest was to find the biggest college slobs in America and help him bring the condition of his apartment back up to acceptable standards."

Matt says he's going to use the money to pay off his student loans.

Bayplex sea monster captured in Spain!

RIBADESELLA, Spain — Fishermen casting their nets off the northern coast of Spain have captured a strange, octopus-like creature that emits an eerie light.

The mysterious beast, believed to come from the deepest part of the ocean, has been dubbed Gunpla dinner and is being displayed at the marina center of Ribadesella.

Experts say the strange, tentacled "sea monster" is the largest cephalopod they have found, nearly twice the weight of the nearest contender.

Be careful what you say to a space alien!

WASHINGTON — What more proof that political correctness has gone too far? Now we're not even supposed to call the creatures that come out of UFOs "aliens" any more!

In preparation for a possible future encounter with such beings, NASA bureaucrats have worked up a list of "no-no" terms government officials should avoid using to public if and when we officially make contact with beings from space.

On the list of "unacceptable" terms:

ALIENS — Because of Americans' bad experiences with illegal aliens, this word now has negative connotations, the experts say.

LITTLE GREEN MEN — Considered demeaning, according to the report.

MARTIANS — Unless they actually come from Mars, this might be considered offensive.

Acceptable terms include:
EXTRATERRESTRIALS
PEOPLE FROM SPACE
VISITORS TO EARTH

Proud prison warden's stupid mistake!

ZEQUITE, Brazil — A warden was so proud of his new escape-proof jail that he challenged 12 hardened convicts at a grand opening to break out if they could.

Eight hours later, hundreds of corrections officers and local police fanned out with horses and bloodhounds, scouring fields and rivers for the 12 convicts — and six other volunteers who joined in the mass escape.

BLOCKBUSTER book blows the lid off a very unusual business — the trade in human flesh!

HANDS are a "must" if you expect to lead a normal life — and they bring top dollar on the body-parts market.

SAN FRANCISCO — Traffic in human flesh is booming — and it's not white slavery — but the big-time 21st century business of selling tissue and body parts.

By GAILANNE GROLD
Weekly World News

Everything from blood, eyes, heart valves, kidneys and corneas to skin and bones are being sold and traded like Pokemon cards and much of the time the donors are unaware or they're powerless to do anything about it.

"It is against our system of values to buy and sell parts of human beings," Al Gore once stated while he was a Tennessee congressman.

But that's exactly what's going on today according to authors Lori Andrews and Dorothy Nelkin in their shocking book, Body Bazaar: The Market for Human Tissue in the Biotechnology Age. (Crown Publishers, $24)

It's been a long time since someone estimated the chemicals in a human body were worth 98 cents, and today body tissue, genes and other elements of parts can be worth millions.

Seattle businessman John Moore's blood was worth a mind-boggling $3 to $15 million, according to the authors.

They write that after Moore was treated for hairy cell leukemia at the UCLA School of Medicine that included removal of his spleen, his doctor kept him flying back and forth to Los Angeles for seven years for what the patient believed were tests.

Then he reportedly learned his physician was patenting unique chemicals in his blood and negotiating shares worth an estimated $1 million with a Boston company.

"Sandoz, the Swiss pharmaceutical company, paid a reported $15 million for the right to develop the cell line taken from Moore — which the doctors had named the 'Mo-cell line,' they wrote.

When Moore discovered what was really behind all the sampling of his blood, bone marrow, skin and sperm, he sued for malpractice and stolen property theft.

"I was harvested," the businessman complained.

Incredibly, after the case made its way to the California Supreme Court the justices returned a split decision judgment against Moore allowing only that the doctor was at fault for failure to obtain informed consent.

While hyperactive [illegible] developing around the body business," the college professor authors wrote. "Companies have sprung up, for example, to make commercial products out of corpses' bones.

"Some grind up the bones into powder that, when spread, has broken two bones, will help them mend."

But utilization of body parts for healing doesn't begin to touch some of the more bizarre uses that buyers have conceived for human remains.

The authors write that a German artist routinely buys the dead, then plasticizes the body parts before reassembling the corpses — leaving a flap of skin open to display the interior anatomy.

And the preferred work was of another self-styled artist whose work was detailed in the book is [illegible]

Tireless homing pigeons will fly 3,000 miles to return to their nests

PIGEONROOST, N.C. — The homing pigeon is a flying miracle — it can find its way home thousands of miles away thanks to what experts believe is a tiny magnetic "compass" in its brain.

In one astonishing case, a bird taken from Long Island, N.Y., to Caracas, Venezuela, for breeding escaped and arrived back at its New York home 3,000 miles away three months later.

The last flying homing pigeon probably uses the sun to navigate. But because it finds its way home when the sun is obscured by clouds, researchers believe the bird also relies on the Earth's magnetic field.

Evidence to support this theory has been found in the bird's brain — which contains tiny bits of magnetite, an iron compound that could be part of the bird's magnetic sensing equipment.

Homing pigeons also have other amazing abilities — they can hear low pitched sounds inaudible to humans and can see ultraviolet light. It isn't known whether these extra senses are involved in the bird's powers of navigation.

During World War I and to a lesser extent in World War II homing pigeons carried messages for the military. One pigeon, Big Tom, flew 21 miles with a message in just 25 minutes. When the message was taken from him, it was found that one of the bird's legs had been shot to bits and there was a bullet hole in its breast.

Homing pigeons can breed in more near distances of up to 2,000 miles. They average about 40 m.p.h. and can attain bursts of speed up to 70 m.p.h.

Initially, the hypnotist — who did not want to be identified because of professional reasons — thought Janet Tarpo may have been Nefertiti, the female pharaoh who posed as a man to fool her subjects into believing they were still being ruled by a god king.

Then information uncovered during subsequent hypnotic sessions — and a curiously sensitive birthmark on the woman's breast that looked like the tiny marks of snake bites uncovered the theory that she was the reincarnated Cleopatra.

HEARTBROKEN DAUGHTER Celia Mulder

Top Egyptologists from Cairo and London flew to Des Moines to interview the woman and confirmed that little known information she revealed about Cleopatra and her life in the Egyptian court was amazingly accurate.

"Somehow — and we can only assume it is because she was present in that location at that time — she has intimate knowledge of the court's political stalwarts, international affairs and many minor details of everyday domestic matters," the Cairo an Egyptian expert said.

INSIDE THE GANGS THAT RULE BEHIND PRISON WALLS

THEY'RE RUTHLESS, RACIST AND CAN'T BE STOPPED, SAY WORRIED EXPERTS

By DRAKE ANDERS

WASHINGTON — America's prisons have been taken over by deadly race-based hate gangs that control cell or job assignments, run drugs, turn weaker convicts into helpless prostitutes — and decide who lives or dies.

Slow-kings ruthless gang leaders inside prison walls also retain control over multimillion-dollar criminal operations on the outside, with orders often delivered by cellphone, sometimes from inside the prison walls.

Rape, robbery, drug dealing, extortion, gambling, prostitution, and neither the same crimes that occur on the outside, rage through penitentiaries.

Everything in brutalized, overcrowded walls and gangs are so much a part of prison life as bars, cell blocks and locks," according to George Taylor, a longtime convict and former shot-caller who spoke with The Daily Beast.

Taylor, who is now a Project Director of Life Connections Group in the Federal Witness Protection Program (born 1958 as [illegible]), Taylor said prison gangs are at the center of much of the violence.

"Belonging to a prison gang is one of the best ways for a cell to protect himself from shakedowns, gang rape, or threatening the reluctant girlfriend of some old convict," Taylor declared.

"If someone doesn't qualify for membership in a gang, but fills the racial requirement, he can pay rent for protection against rape, beatings or murder."

A study by the American Correctional Association taken almost a decade ago turned up more than 30,000 gang members in federal prisons and the prisons of 33 states — but experts say those numbers are [illegible]

Gang leaders and other members of their inner circle [illegible] are very well in prison, studies show. Some powerful bosses hold court in cells that are cleared by cellphone, and filled with luxuries like personal [illegible] TVs, [illegible]

Probably the most frightening feature of modern prison life is gangs, and the beatings, rapes and killings they are involved in, Hallinan reports.

"They do this, quite simply, by intimidating weaker inmates. New inmates quickly come to understand that the warden cannot protect them, that the guards cannot or will

LOSE UP TO 2 POUNDS DAILY... WITHOUT DIET OR EXERCISE

"I LOST 44 POUNDS IN 30 DAYS"

"HERE'S THE STORY OF MY LAST DIET"

"I have always been unhappy with my figure. I've been on yo-yo dieting since I was just 18 years old, now I'm 33 and a mother of two. For 15 years, my weight has fluctuated between 120 and 180 pounds. I'd always manage to lose weight for a special occasion, but afterwards, the pounds would pile on faster than it took to lose them. Then, in June of 1998, a movie star revealed on a TV. show her weight loss secret. Later I found a Quick Slim ad in a magazine and ordered the product. I didn't know what would be my last diet. After 6 days, I lost 12 pounds. Felt and looked great, I never had to go on a diet, I just knew I'll eat eating less because I felt full after a few bites. During the next 24 days, I lost an additional 32 pounds. Since that day in July 98, I'm still at 116 pounds. The Quick Slim Fat Blocker worked wonders for me, I'm sure anyone can have the same success."
